Understanding the Purpose of Biblical Fasting

Biblical fasting is fundamentally about drawing closer to God and seeking His guidance, power, and intervention. Kay Arthur emphasizes that fasting is not a means to manipulate God but a spiritual discipline that aligns the believer's heart with God's purposes. The primary purpose is to humble oneself before the Lord, acknowledge dependence on Him, and prioritize spiritual nourishment over physical needs. This act of self-denial helps believers to focus on prayer, repentance, and spiritual clarity.

Fasting as a Spiritual Weapon

According to Kay Arthur, fasting is a powerful spiritual weapon against the forces of darkness. It is often paired with prayer to break strongholds and overcome challenges that cannot be defeated by human effort alone. Fasting intensifies the believer's spiritual sensitivity and reliance on the Holy Spirit, enabling more effective intercession and spiritual warfare.

Seeking God's Will Through Fasting

Fasting also serves as a time to seek God's direction in difficult decisions or seasons of uncertainty. Kay Arthur teaches that fasting creates space for God's voice to be heard more clearly, as physical distractions are minimized and spiritual focus is heightened. This principle underscores fasting as an act of surrender and expectancy.

Essential Attitudes and Heart Posture in Fasting

The heart behind fasting is critically important in biblical fasting principles presented by Kay Arthur. Fasting must be done with the right motives and attitudes to be effective and pleasing to God. The focus is on genuine humility, repentance, and a desire to grow closer to God rather than seeking recognition or personal gain.

Humility Before God

Humility is key when approaching fasting. Kay Arthur stresses that fasting is not a spiritual performance but a demonstration of dependence on God's grace and mercy. A humble heart acknowledges personal weaknesses and sins, making fasting a conduit for God's cleansing and renewal.

Sincerity and Secrecy

Fasting should be sincere and not done for public display or to garner praise. Following Jesus' teaching in Matthew 6, Kay Arthur highlights the importance of fasting in secret, where it is between the individual and God. This sincerity ensures the fast is spiritually fruitful and not tainted by pride.

A Heart Focused on God's Glory

The motive behind fasting must be to glorify God rather than fulfilling personal desires. Kay Arthur points out that fasting is an act of worship and submission that seeks to exalt God's name and purposes above all else.

Types of Fasting According to Kay Arthur

Kay Arthur distinguishes between various types of fasting found in the Bible, helping believers understand the diversity and flexibility in fasting practices. Recognizing these types helps in choosing an appropriate fast according to one's spiritual needs and physical ability.

Absolute Fast

An absolute fast involves complete abstinence from all food and drink for a limited period, typically for urgent spiritual needs or divine encounters. Kay Arthur notes that this fast should be undertaken with caution and guidance, as it is physically demanding.

Partial Fast

Partial fasting, often called the Daniel fast, involves abstaining from certain types of food or drink but not all. This fast is more sustainable for longer durations and focuses on simplicity and discipline, reflecting Daniel's example in the Bible.

Corporate and Individual Fasting

Fasting can be practiced individually or corporately within a church or community. Kay Arthur emphasizes that corporate fasting unites believers in prayer and purpose, whereas individual fasting allows for personal spiritual growth and intimacy with God.
