The "family" aspect symbolizes the unity of these matching cards, representing a complete or nearly complete collection within a deck or hand. The concept extends beyond just cards to include other matching sets in games or collections, emphasizing the importance of gathering similar elements for strategic advantage.

In poker, an all of a kind family is most evident in hands like four of a kind or five of a kind (which can occur with wild cards). These hands are among the highest-ranking combinations, often guaranteeing a win. Players focus on identifying opportunities to collect such sets either through drawing or betting strategies that maximize the potential for these powerful hands.

Rummy and Melds

Rummy players seek to form melds, sets of three or four cards of the same rank or runs of consecutive cards.
