Background and History of Morning Has Broken

The song "Morning Has Broken" originated as a Christian hymn first published in 1931, with lyrics written by Eleanor Farjeon. The hymn celebrates the beauty of a new day and the renewal of life that morning brings. It became widely known outside traditional church settings after Cat Stevens released his popular version in 1971. His soft folk-rock arrangement introduced the song to a broader audience, blending spiritual themes with accessible melodies. The song's gentle and uplifting nature has ensured its lasting presence in both religious and secular music repertoires.

Origins and Composition

Eleanor Farjeon crafted the lyrics as a poetic reflection on the dawn and the natural world's awakening. The hymn was originally set to the traditional Scottish Gaelic tune "Bunessan," which adds a Celtic folk character to the melody. The combination of Farjeon's evocative words and the simple, beautiful tune creates a serene and hopeful atmosphere that resonates across generations.

Popular Versions and Influence

Besides Cat Stevens' version, many artists and choirs have performed "Morning Has Broken" in various styles, from classical arrangements to contemporary adaptations. Its universal themes of renewal and gratitude have made it a staple in worship services, weddings, and inspirational events. The song also frequently appears in instructional materials for music students due to its straightforward chord structure and memorable melody.

Complete Lyrics of Morning Has Broken

The lyrics of "Morning Has Broken" reflect themes of new beginnings, gratitude, and the beauty of nature. The structure is simple and repetitive, enhancing the meditative and uplifting quality of the hymn. Below is the full set of lyrics as commonly performed.

Full Lyrics

Morning has broken, like the first morning,

Blackbird has spoken, like the first bird.

Praise for the singing, praise for the morning,

Praise for them springing fresh from the world.

Sweet the rain's new fall, sunlit from heaven,

Like the first dewfall on the first grass.

Praise for the sweetness of the wet garden,

Sprung in completeness where His feet pass.

Mine is the sunlight, mine is the morning,

Born of the one light Eden saw play.

Praise with elation, praise every morning,

God's recreation of the new day.

Tips for Playing and Singing Morning Has Broken

Performing "Morning Has Broken" effectively requires attention to both musicality and emotional expression. The song's gentle melody and simple chords provide an excellent foundation for beginners, while subtle nuances in dynamics and tempo can enhance the overall experience for more advanced musicians.

Playing Techniques

When playing the chords on guitar or piano, use a soft and flowing strumming or arpeggiated pattern to reflect the song's peaceful mood. Avoid harsh or abrupt changes in volume. Fingerpicking guitar arrangements are also popular and can add a delicate texture to the performance.

Singing Considerations

Vocally, maintain a clear and warm tone to convey the song's hopeful message. Breath control is important to sustain the longer phrases smoothly. Emphasizing key words like "morning," "praise," and "new day" can help communicate the song's uplifting theme. Additionally, practicing with a metronome can ensure steady tempo and rhythm.

Common Performance Challenges

Some musicians may find the chord transitions between F and G challenging due to finger positioning, especially on guitar. Practicing chord changes slowly and incrementally increasing speed can improve fluidity. Another challenge is maintaining consistent vocal pitch throughout the song's range, which can be addressed through vocal exercises and careful rehearsal.

- Use gentle fingerpicking or soft strumming to match the song's mood.
- Practice chord transitions slowly to build muscle memory.
- Focus on breath control for sustained vocal phrases.
- Emphasize lyrical meaning through vocal dynamics.
- Utilize a metronome to maintain steady tempo.
